The J-to-the-C makes his triumphant return to the podcast as the pre-season comes to an end and the games now begin to matter. This has been an interesting exhibition season as the Phoenix Suns (5-2) closed out strong showing signs of life and creating more questions that need to be answered.

This week we review the play of Kendall Marshall, the Achilles Heel of the Suns this year, and take inventory over which players options will get picked up this year.

Overall Jim and I decided to run long with the timing of the podcast at the end of the pre-season and with us bringing the show a day later than normal. Enjoy.
